SAW SUICIDE ON BRIDGE OF CREEK

Mail Carrier Winand Saw Unknown
Man who Met Death in the Conewago Near East Berlin. Body
here Near Midnight Wednesday.

Mail Carrier C. E. Winand has furnished the only clue to the man who was found dead in the dam at East Berlin on Tuesday evening by Frank G. Miller who was fishing at the time. While covering his rounds two or three weeks ago, Mr. Winand does not remember the day—he saw a man walking up and down on a bridge about a mile and three quarters above the dam. The man seemed to be worried and in deep thought. It is generally believed that he plunged into the creek soon after Mr. Winand passed and that the body of the drowned man is his. The condition of the body indicated that it had been in the water for about three weeks.

When found it was standing upright in the mud of the dam but the condition of the head showed that it had been lying at the bottom of the creek for some time. The recent high waters are evidently responsible for its appearance in the dam. Only the head was visible when Mr. Miller first saw it.

The man is described as about forty years of age and weighing about 170 pounds. He had black hair and a sandy mustache, and carried among other things a torn envelope with only a part of the address remaining as follows "David—, National Military, Ohio." He was well dressed and wore a pair of Regal shoes. On the inside of the collar of the coat was the following "Baltimore One Price Clothing Store, Harrisburg, Pa."

Steward Sheely, of the County Home, drove to East Berlin Wednesday for the body and arrived with the remains at about eleven o'clock at night after a dark drive of fifteen miles in the rain over muddy roads. The body was interred in the County Home cemetery this morning.

FAMILY RELIC

At the public sale of James R. Neely a mahogany "secretary" was sold which has been in the same family for more than one hundred years.

The following is the family history of the article which is highly prized.

William Godfrey emigrated from Wales early in the 18th century and settled at or near historic Valley Forge. About the year 1776 he sold that farm to Benjamin Potts and purchased about 800 acres of land in the upper end of York county, part of which is the farm now owned by Henry Strayer. William Godfrey died in 1812 and his son, Thomas, inherited the farm together with the much desired desk or "secretary" and at his death in 1881 the ancient piece of furniture was given to his daughter, Mary, who subsequently married James Harvey Neely. When she died in 1886 the secretary was inherited by her son, James R. Neely who has relinquished housekeeping and had public sale on Saturday when it was purchased by his brother, Thomas Godfrey Neely and given by him to his grandson, Thomas Neely Cashman, so that it may be preserved as a family relic.

D. A. R. FIGHT FOR OFFICES

Both Sides Claim Victory in Today's Election.

SQUABBLE OVER RECORDS

National Board's Attempt to Give Them to Library of Congress Voted Down in Convention.

Washington, April 20.—With both sides making claims of victory and the delegates wrought up to the highest pitch of excitement, the Daughters of the American Revolution began balloting this afternoon for officers for the ensuing year.

The fight for president general is between Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, of Illinois, the incumbent, and Mrs. William C. Story, of New York. The opposing factions were lining up their delegates this morning and making strenuous efforts to turn the lukewarm members.

A test of strength came in the vote to keep the Chalkley manuscript. Incidentally a decided victory for the insurgents supporting Mrs. William C. Story, of New York, for president general, was registered when the vote was taken.

The national board dominated by the present D. A. R. administration forces had voted at its last meeting to give the manuscript to the library of congress, much against the advice of Mrs. Short Adams Willis, the librarian general, who contended that those valuable records should be retained by the society and published by it.

The discussion of the fate of the Chalkley records came immediately after the presentation of the report of the publication committee, made by Mrs. Egbert R. Jones, who recommended that the congress agree to the disposal of the Chalkley manuscript as already decided upon by the national board. Mrs. Jones declared that the society could not afford to publish the records, that several publishers had been appealed to and all had refused to take the responsibility.

Then Mrs. Willis entered the arena. She produced letter after letter from recognized authorities on genealogy to prove that the Chalkley records were of great value and should be retained by the society.

"Shall we give up records which will enable hundreds of thousands of women to prove their eligibility to membership in the D. A. R.?" demanded Mrs. Willis. "I wish to see the society reap the benefit of publishing this record. Hundreds of persons would gladly buy it. If it is given to the library of congress it is lost to us forever. And the library of congress has given no assurance that it will publish the records."

One of the Story party insisted that there was a professional genealogist in the ranks of the D. A. R., who was particularly anxious to have the manuscript presented to the library of congress so that she could use the records to sell genealogies to women desiring to become members of the society.

When the vote finally came not a single Daughter voted in favor of the proposition submitted by Mrs. Jones. Mrs. Scott, the president general, who is up for re-election and is being opposed by Mrs. Story, seemed bewildered at the vote and asked twice in vain for the yeas.

The Daughters were received at the White House by President and Mrs. Taft and cordially welcomed.

JAMES SPEYER IN

MISSOURI PACIFIC

Rockefeller Interests Friendly

to George Gould.

New York, April 20.—James Speyer will take the place of Paul M. Warburg, resigned, in the directorate of the Missouri Pacific railway, and the house of Speyer & Co., closely allied with the Deutsche bank, will fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as bankers for the road. Mr. Speyer admitted this much to close friends.

Fred T. Gates, representing John D. Rockefeller on the Missouri Pacific board; Edgar L. Marston, representing Blair & Co., and Edward D. Adams, representing the Deutsche bank, all decided to keep their positions.

The same interests have worked harmoniously in the past and the supposition in Wall street was that they had taken their lead from Mr. Rockefeller, who, as second largest stockholder in the property and a commanding influence in the banking community, may now be said to control its financial policy.

Mr. Gates said that the Rockefeller interests were "entirely friendly" to George J. Gould, who, with Mr. Rockefeller's aid, dictated the nomination of the newly elected president, B. F. Bush.

One of Mosby's Veterans Fired at Robber Who Had Him Covered.

Culpepper, Va., April 20.—Not forgetting the prowess of his younger days, J. H. Judd, a veteran of Colonel John S. Mosby's famous "rangers" and ex-sheriff of Culpepper, shot a highwayman while the latter had him covered.

Mr. Judd was driving to Culpepper in a buggy, and while passing through a dark wood was accosted by two masked men. One bandit seized his horse while the other ordered: "Hand over your pocketbook and be quick."

Mr. Judd replied that he would oblige and, reaching into his pocket, drew a revolver and fired. The robber also fired. Mr. Judd's and the robber's aim was bad.

The second robber released the horse to assist his comrade and the horse ran away, with Mr. Judd firing over the back of his rig. No arrests have been made.

GIRL'S FACE AS ADV. IS COURT PROBLEM

To Decide if It Can be Used
Without Her Consent.

Washington, April 20.—Members of the supreme court of the United States put their heads together to determine whether a pretty woman, particularly a pretty New York woman, may prevent the use of her photograph for advertising or trade purposes.

Photographers, newspapers and moving picture men are said to be vitally concerned.

The court was considering the case of Mrs. Alda T. Rhodes, of Brooklyn, N. Y. One day, arrayed in her wedding gown, she had her photograph taken for a birthday present for her husband. Not long afterward her sister-in-law remarked: "I saw your picture today in the window of a trading stamp store."

Mrs. Rhodes obtained from the company exhibiting her photograph a $1000 judgment. Now the supreme court of the United States is asked to annul as unconstitutional the New York statute of 1903, making it a misdemeanor to use a name or photograph for advertising or trade purposes without the consent of the subject.

ASSURES TAFT OF PEACE SOON

Mexican Ambassador Presented to the President.

CONFIRMS ARMISTICE PLAN

But Negotiations Between Diaz and the Insurrectos May Mean That Both Sides Are Playing For an Advantage.

Washington, April 20.—Peace in Mexico will soon be restored, according to Senator Manuel De Zamacona, the new Mexican ambassador to the United States, who was presented to President Taft.

The ambassador made this prediction in a formal speech to the president. In reply President Taft said that the people of the United States hoped fervently that harmony would soon prevail.

With the receipt at the state department of advices confirming the report that negotiations for an armistice between the federal and rebel forces are in progress, the opinion was expressed that opportune action had been taken by both sides in the Mexican revolution to prevent complications with the United States.

Dr. Vazquez Gomez, head of the confidential agency of the revolutionists, has been signed by Miss Lela M. Devine, the comely auditor of the Parmelee-Dohmann company.

Miss Devine has agreed not to marry for ten years.

In return for this sacrifice, which the sentimental might consider to be the greatest possible to woman kind, especially if she be young and good looking, Miss Devine received from the firm a large block of stock.

The contract has been in effect four years and when Miss Devine signed it she was twenty-four. The terms of the agreement, which is in writing, drawn with exactitude and properly attested, will bind Miss Devine until she is thirty-four, and if she then is unmarried the stock will be hers absolutely.

If, on the other hand, she should marry before ten years from the signing of the contract have expired, she will forfeit the stock to the company.

The situation was causing great alarm to the authorities a week ago. Fez is surrounded by the adherents of various tribes and the city is threatened with a famine.

SHE BARTERS HER LOVE FOR STOCK

Miss Devine Agrees Not to Wed For Ten Years.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 20.—One of the most novel contracts ever known has been signed by Miss Lela M. Devine, the comely auditor of the Parmelee-Dohmann company.

Miss Devine has agreed not to marry for ten years.

In return for this sacrifice, which the sentimental might consider to be the greatest possible to woman kind, especially if she be young and good looking, Miss Devine received from the firm a large block of stock.

The extraordinary obligation was imposed upon Miss Devine by herself; that is, it was through her suggestion that the contract was drawn.

QUOTE TAFT TO BOOST FREE LIST

Democrats Show Why Tariff Should be Lowered.

CHEAP FOOD IS AIMED AT

"Farmers' Free List Bill" Reported in House—Removes Over $10,000,000 in Duties and Raps Trusts.

Washington, April 19.—Quoting President Taft in an effort to show that the Republican policy of a high protective tariff has proved a failure, the Democrats brought into the house, with a favorable report from the committee on ways and means, their "farmers' free list bill."

The report on the bill, presented by Representative Underwood, chairman of the committee, is a merger of Democratic political argument, based very largely on the utterances of the president, and an analysis of the proposed exemptions from duty.

The report shows that the free list bill would reduce the tariff revenue $10,016,495, based on the importations for the last fiscal year, an amount described as "inconsiderable in comparison with the great saving and advantages to all of our people from the additions to the free list provided for."

Quoting President Taft's recent Canadian reciprocity speeches, the report seeks to convey the impression that the administration is convinced that protective tariff rates are too high.

"In several public addresses," it says, "he (the president) has admitted that tariff rates are too high, that such rates have resulted in excessively high prices, felt especially in the increased cost of living, which now bears heavily on our people, and that they have not received the long-promised benefits of domestic competition under high protective duties."

The report takes up in detail the classified list of articles included in the free list bill. Regarding agricultural implements, it says their manufacture is controlled by trusts and combinations that have sold in foreign countries at lower prices than at home, building up their foreign trade from $3,859,184 in 1890 to $28,124,033 in 1910.

Bagging and baling materials, essential in the transportation of agricultural products, the report says, cannot receive benefits of protection in home markets and duties on them "have annoyed and burdened the farmers to add to the profits of exacting trusts and combinations."

Concerning hoops, bands and ties of iron and steel, barbed wire for fencing, etc., the report says the high duties make the people dependent upon the "giant steel industry" which for years has sold products abroad lower than to domestic consumers.

The placing on the free list of all forms of leather from cattle, hides and skins, boots, shoes, harness, saddlery, etc., the committee argues, will be of advantage in manufacturing and necessarily of benefit to agricultural producers.

The "beef trust" is assailed in discussion of the free listing of fresh meats and meat products. For the reason that the public desires "that no artificial shelter shall be maintained to protect abnormally high prices on food articles in any form" the bill also seeks exemption from duty on wheat flour, semolina, rye flour, buckwheat flour, cornmeal and all prepared cereal foods, biscuits, bread and similar articles not sweetened.

TACOMA MAYOR RECALLED

Though His Anti-Treating Law Carries He Is Called Saloon Ally.

Tacoma, Wash., April 20.—Mayor A. V. Fawcett, of Tacoma, was recalled. W. W. Seymour is the new mayor. He will take office at the end of ten days. Seymour polled 11,246 votes against 10,394 for Fawcett.

An election will be held on May 2 to vote on the recall of four city commissioners.

The Welfare league was organized for the purpose of recalling Mayor Fawcett and the city commissioners. They were charged with gross incompetency, and Fawcett was opposed by many women voters and church people generally.

Fawcett's anti-treating ordinance recently was made a law at a referendum election, but despite this he was charged with being in league with the saloons. He had served eleven months of a four-year term.

They All Demand It.

Gettysburg, Like Every City and Town in the Union, Receives It.

People with kidney ills want to be cured. When one suffers the tortures of an aching back, relief is eagerly sought for. There are many remedies to-day that relieve but do not cure. Here is evidence to prove that Doan's Kidney Pills cure, and the cure is lasting. Mrs. Frank Tawney, 28 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family with excellent results. I publicly endorsed them two years ago and hold just as high an opinion of them at this time. A member of my family was afflicted with Kidney Trouble for years and probably inherited it. This person suffered a great deal from pains in his back and sides and was unable to control the kidney secretions. A cold always aggravated the complaint. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at the People's Drug Store and their use effected a complete cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRONCHITIS

To Whom It May Concern.

Bluevale, Ont., May 4, 1910. "I was sick for two years with chronic bronchitis and a consequent run-down condition. I received no benefit from doctors or from a trip which I took for my health, and I had to give up work. Vinol was recommended and from the second bottle I commenced to improve—I gained in weight and strength, my bronchial trouble disappeared, and I am at work again. I want to recommend Vinol to anyone who is in need of such a medicine." Thomas Higgins. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

It is the combined action of the curative elements of the cods' livers aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol which makes it so successful in curing bronchitis.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis and pulmonary troubles, not a palliative like cough syrups.

Vinol contains no oil or drugs and is far more efficacious than cough mixtures, because it cures the cause. Try it. If you don't think it helps you, we will return your money. People's Drug Store, C. Wm. Beales Proprietor, Gettysburg, Pa.

FITTING EWES FOR EARLY BREEDING.

Some difficulty is said to be found in inducing ewes to breed as early as the middle of June, and I have been asked to state my experience in the matter, writes J. Pickering Ross in Farm and Fireside. Individual cases certainly will occur in almost every flock of ewes which refuse to breed at any time of the year, but I have never known this unwillingness to extend to any serious number of its members and have always been able to meet it by substituting other ewes for these refractory ones.

It is frequently a matter of weather or of unsuitable local conditions. A cold, wet spring is certain to retard the tendency of the ewes to mate and can only be met by providing warm shelter and increasing the allowance of grain and hay. Locating them on damp, low

Lincoln sheep are said to be the longest legged and longest woolled sheep in existence. Having had their origin in Lincolnshire, England, these sheep have been imported in considerable numbers, and there are several thousand of them in the United States today. Lincoln, Leicester and Cotswolds may be called general purpose sheep, inasmuch as both wool and mutton have been given equal attention in the selection and breeding of these three breeds. The picture shows a pure bred Lincoln ram. He is a good individual and quite typical of the breed.

and marshy ground tends also greatly to retard the breeding time, but want of proper condition is far more injurious than either of these. If a ewe is allowed to become really fat she will show a great indifference as to mating, and her progeny, if any, is likely to be wanting in stamina, and the same may be predicted of one that is poor and thin. Feeding corn has much to do with the former mishap, for corn is a great fat maker. Lack of food or shelter or some diseased condition will be responsible for the latter. In neither case is the ewe fit for breeding early lambs. She must be full and high in flesh, but not fat and certainly not poor. I would not give these ewes either corn or alfalfa in any form.

Personally I have generally had good success with Lincoln rams on Shropshire ewes mated in June. For the production of top price meat there used to be a prejudice against Dorsets, partly on account of their horns and partly because for the early spring lamb trade their meat was supposed to tend to coarseness. But that was in England, and I don't think the breed had at that time had as wide or as fair a trial as they have since obtained here.

In this country, then (to sum up my ideas on the subject), I would say that in order to catch the spring markets in sections where warm and even hot weather may be expected even in May it would be advisable to use a Dorset or Lincoln ram on Shropshire ewes. Where the seasons are later and more uncertain it would perhaps be best to have Dorsets on both sides, but in that case I should hardly expect to catch the very top prices.

Cow Testing Associations.

It is the height of folly to keep unprofitable cows, and the man who has no record of his cows can never tell how many unprofitable ones are in his herd. It pays every man to keep a continuous record of each individual, but so many people think they have not time to learn whether they are making or losing money with their cows and continue in the old way that keeps the average production at a ridiculously low figure. By forming associations of twenty to twenty-six farmers and hiring a competent man to spend a day with each member of the association to weigh and test the milk once a month they can come close enough to actual production to enable them to eliminate the unprofitable cows. Testing associations should be formed in every neighborhood, and when this is done it will mean hundreds of thousands of dollars in the pockets of our farmers who keep milk cows.—National Stockman.

Discard Bad Ensilage.

Care should be taken to discard all decayed ensilage and not feed it to milking cows. When silos first became common milk from silage fed cows received a bad reputation. This was due in large measure to the feeding of rotten ensilage. On opening the silo it is better to throw away too much of the top layer than to risk feeding spoiled silage. Spoiled spots also as they are found should on no account be fed.—Farm and Dairy.

Keep the Cattle Warm.

A roll of building paper and some laths rightly applied will reduce the feed bill because it is easier to keep the cattle warm by shutting off the cold drafts than to keep them warm by extra feed.

Captain Jack and Captain Ben

By MARGARET FOSTER

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Margaret Swift was born and brought up on the New Hampshire coast among seafaring people.

When Maggie grew old enough to have a lover there were two candidates for her favor. Both were assistants on fishing smacks. Jack Cady was a wild youngster who promised no good, and no good ever came out of him. Ben Wharton was a steady young fellow, whose parents never had any occasion to worry about him. Maggie at first preferred Jack, but as soon as she came to an age to see the difference between the two young men she found Ben the more acceptable of the two.

Both Jack and Ben went to sea, and both became masters of vessels when they were still very young. Both were much in love with Maggie, and each strove to accumulate the means whereby he might be enabled to claim her, though this is rather true of Ben than Jack, for while the former progressed steadily the latter did so by fits and starts, now and again getting into positions where any money he had saved was needed to help him out.

Maggie's father was interested in her marrying a man who could give her a home and comforts. He believed she would wed with one or the other of these two young captains and used to say to them:

"The man that gets my daughter with my consent must be able to take care of her."

This at once caused a rivalry between the two men for something more mercenary than love. Ben in a few years owned a part of the vessel he commanded, but Jack, owing to his unsteadiness, was in about the same condition as at his starting. Maggie really began to love Ben, and Jack, thinking that his rival was favored because he had more means than he, became very much disgruntled.

Toward the end of one of Ben's voyages he was approaching the coast of New England when what seemed to be a derelict appeared ahead. Nearing her, she was found to be a vessel lumbering in the waves half full of water, part of her cargo soaked and ruined, but the rest in good condition. The name on the stern was so blurred that it could not be made out, and it was supposed that it had needed freshening when the vessel had been abandoned, and since the waves beating upon it, had rendered it still more faint. One man who examined it closely said that it had been scraped.

The ship not being greatly damaged and half the cargo in good condition, Captain Ben saw a chance for prize money for himself and his crew. He attached a hawser to her with a view of towing her into the nearest port, about 500 miles distant. After a good deal of trouble, the cable parting several times, he succeeded in getting her into Boston.

It was not long before the prize was identified and not much longer before it became evident that there had been fraud in her abandonment. The water was pumped out of her and a hole was found in her bottom, indicating that she had been scuttled. She was overinsured and, the two taken together, indicated that it was a case of attempted fraud on the insurance companies. When Captain Ben was told the name of the vessel he was thunderstruck. It had been for several years commanded by his rival.

The next news Captain Ben learned was that Captain Cady had arrived at home, reporting that after a frightful storm, finding his ship in a sinking condition, he had considered it necessary to take to the boats. All the crew were saved. Proofs of loss had been made to the insurance companies and payment was daily expected.

It was evident to Ben that in order to overreach him in the wherewithal to marry Maggie his rival had been tempted to commit a fraud which would land him in state prison. Leaving his first mate to sail his ship into her destined port, Ben went home by land. As soon as he arrived he sought out his rival and told him of the finding of his ship, the towing her into port and the discoveries that had followed.

"I don't wish to see you punished for your crime," said Ben, "and have come to enable you to get away."

It was evident from the culprit's demeanor that he was already severely punished in the loss of the girl he had hoped to win by fraud. But whether there was thankfulness in his heart to the man who had given him an opportunity to escape a prison, Ben did not feel assured. Certain it is that Jack Cady was never again seen in New England after that interview.

When Captain Ben met Maggie Swift he found her much disturbed. His rival had shown that he was about to receive considerable money for his last voyage and had made application to her father for her hand. She did not wish to marry Jack, but she idolized her father. Ben told her of his finding a ship and that considerable prize money was due him, which he would receive in time. But he said never a word of Jack's attempt to defraud.

However, it was not long before the whole matter came out and Maggie and her father too—learned that if it had not been for Ben's find, had her father prevailed, she would have married a swindler.

And so it was that a dishonest man's rascality was turned to his honest rival's advantage.

Asking Too Much.

In Scotland once a drunken man met a clergyman chasing his runaway dog on Sunday. "Tammas," said the breathless clergyman, "I am sorry to see you in this condition, but whistle for my dog. He is running the speaker with gravity and said: "Whistle? I can drink whisky, but I'll no whistle for any dog on the Lord's day."

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it. MISS E. A. ROSS, Sharon, Mercer Co., Pa.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good, and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps on coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.
